Water for the North West

I know that myself and many others are concerned about the water quality of Lake Windermere because of the extraordinary levels of sewage dumping by water companies into waterways across the country.

United Utilities, the water company for the North West of England, are hosting two 'drop-in' sessions at the end of the month to address these concerns and answer your questions.

I encourage you to attend if you want to find out more and have your voice heard, details are below!
